Anti-Trust Law Dead Letter

Mr. Untermyer said Mr. Daugherty was "conspicuously unfit" for his office and was appointed "solely on the basis of personal friendship and political service" for President Harding. "He had made a virtual dead letter of the anti-trust law." said Mr. Untermyer. "The war fraud cases have ended in a complete fizzle."

Improper conduct in the General Electric, New Haven Railroad, United Gas and other cases also was charged against the Attorney General by Mr. Untermeyer, who in addition suggested numerous legislative reforms, including amendment of the Federal Reserve act, protection of the public against fraudulent securities, regulation of stock and commodity exchanges, Federal licensing of interstate corperations, transfer of anti-trust prosecutions to the Federal Trade Commission and prohibition of tax free securities.

Secretary Mellon Criticized

Representative Sinclair, Republican, North Dakota, urged agricultural credits, but criticized the Administration credit program and also the War Finance Corporation system of making loans to farmers through bankers. Secretary Mellon was criticized by Representative Frear, Wisconsin, Republican, who went over his controversy with the Cabinet. official regarding taxation of corporations' surplus profits. He said Secretary Mellon was reported to be worth $300,000,000, with an income of $50,000 a day, and criticized him for alleged failure to tax rich corporations. "The office of the Internal Revenue Commissioner needs an investigation and a cleaning out, and I am willing to furnish the evidence," said Representative Frear, adding that the chief solicitor formerly was an usher in the White House.

Attacks Machine Control

Attacks Machine Control

Abolition of the Presidential Electoral College was advocated by Senator Norris. Republican, Nebraska, in a speech to the conference on "bringing the government back to the people." In framing the Constitution Senator Norris said "our forefathers were groping to the derk executions to some exris said "our forefathers were groping in the dark, experimenting to some extent," and really had placed very little power directly in the hands of the people. He charged "machine control" of national political conventions, and argued that the people should be allowed to choose nominees for President as well as other offices.

A third party, Senator Norris said, was, "for practical results, an impossibility," entailing great expense and labar, while direct nomination of Presidential candidates would give the independent voter the right to make his choice regardless of any party machine.

"Something must be done to help the farmers," said Mr. Frazier, "or the na-tion will go broke as the farmers have gone broke."

Despite the referring of this whole matter back to the committee there is no question that the Turkish attitude to-day has added another black mark to the long list of those from which it is already suffering almost to the point of open admission of failure.

Ambassador Child, besides his statement on the question of capitulations, issued a denial to-day of the report generally in circulation here that he had suggested a postponement of the whole conference. This statement said: "The American representatives, in common with ell those who desire peace and general welfare, entertain common with all those who desire peace and general welfare, entertain the sincerest hope for complete success of the negotiations and believe the forces which impel the nations seeking adjustments in the Near East are growing forces."

The Ambassador also indicated that views credited to him are being put out from sources hoping to gain as a result. He indicated, too, that he will not hesitate to reveal at the proper time the nature of these sources.

The resolutions recited that the direct primary had met with "opposition of political bosses who represent the special interests" and said the time had come "not only to extend and protect the primary laws in the various states, but to apply the direct primary principle to the choice of the President and Vice-President."

The resolutions also declared for "Immediate enactment of a Federal corrupt practices act with a sufficient supply of teeth to permanently dispose of 'Newberryism' in this country."

The next meeting of the progressive bloc is planned early in the regular session of Congress, with Indications of its first fight being wared against the Administration shipping bill.

$20,000 Damage Estimated in Brooklyn Blaze That Takes in 3 Buildings

Fire, starting in the tenement at 288 Marion Street, Brooklyn, and spreading to the two adjoining buildings, yesterday caused damage estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000 and left ten families homeless. Two alarms and a large force of police reserves had to be called before the blaze was brought under control.

The fire was discovered in the ceiling of the flat on the top floor, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Karcher and their son. They ran to the street and a patrolman turned in an alarm.

The section is particularly crowded and the houses were part of a row of eight fram buildings so joined that the roofs were continuous, which facilitated the spread of the flames. All cilitated the spread of the flames. All cilitated the spread of the buildings in an orderly fashion when notified by the molecular to the police.

Only the upper portions of the tenements were harmed by the flames, but the lower floors and the basements were damaged considerably by water.

Act, Held Misleading, May Not Reach Vote Again, Though Indorsed by Fall

From The Tribune's Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. Senator Bursum's bill to ascertain and settle and claims of persons other than Indions within the Pueblo Indian land grants and reservations in the State of New Mexico has struck rough traveling in the Senate. Although efforts were made to rush it through in the isst regular session of Congress, these efforts have failed and it has become uncertain now whether it will be acted uncertain now whether it will be acted on tals winter.

The bill passed the Senate with Httle attention paid to it. Senator Borsh later was advised that it did not do what it was supposed to do, and did not sufficiently, as he believed, safeguard the rights of the ancient tribe of Puebles. He therefore asked that it be recalled from the House, and this was done and the bill sent back to the Senate Public Lands Committee, whence it was reported in the first place.

Senate Bursum was not present in the recent extra session, and he has asked that it be held in committee until he returns to Washington, early in the short or regular session, beginning Decembéf 4.

When the bill passed the Senate it was intended agreed on the bill, but later the Eastern Association on Indian Affairs, recognizing the great historic importance of the Pueblos and their ancient dwelling places, became convinced that the bill would operate unjustly to deprive them of lands and ultimately exterminate them. This association, as
